

The HARTHILL Plot

Spring Issue

April 2018

FIGHTBACK AGAINST VANDALISM CONTINUES

We haven't reached peak vandalism and theft season yet - touch wood - but we have been taking pre-emptive action to prevent further trouble.

First of all, the police are fully aware of the situation and have posted warning notices. Needless to say, these were torn down - presumably by the people they were aimed at - but maybe they managed to read them first. We have also installed cameras which take pictures of people making unauthorised entry at key points. For obvious reasons we are not publicising where they are. We've been helped in this by local city councillors' ward funds (thank you to Councillor Richard Wenstone). We haven't caught any intruders yet but the cameras have already shown their worth by taking snaps of the welcome return of the Harthill foxes. Apart from being a welcome sight they should help with rat control (see box below).

And thanks to everyone who helped to plant some surplus brambles by the sandstone wall, providing a natural barrier to intruders. By the way, if you see some brambles near your plot by the perimeter, please don't cut them back. Check with us first, they may have been put there on purpose! There's some holly by the wall, too, but that is a bit slow growing for our purpose.

Spring springing at Harthill.
But slowly

- Please park carefully.
- Don't cut into paths - have a thought for the (volunteer) mowers!
